Change Food Founder & Executive Director Diane Hatz organized and hosted 5 very successful TEDxManhattan “Changing the Way We Eat” events in New York City from 2011-2015. The events were attended or viewed by tens of thousands of people; media impressions were in the hundreds of millions, and video talks from the event are nearing 7 million views.

Now, in 2016, Hatz and her nonprofit Change Food are launching a bigger, more comprehensive event - The Change Food Fest - in recognition of the increased scale, scope and pace of the food movement. The Change Food Fest will feature TED-like talks as well as more interactive and engaging panels, discussions, dinners, activities and experiences. Hatz believes this expanded format will be more engaging and help accelerate the creation and spread of positive changes in our food system. Talks will be recorded and placed in the Change Food Video Library, where they will be heavily promoted to the public throughout the year and beyond.

The Change Food Fest will explore both visionary and concrete solutions to problems with our food system. Change Food doesn't just talk about the problems we face, but has committed to taking action and working toward solutions that can realistically be implemented. The fest will celebrate and showcase the people and work creating real change in the US and around the world.
