Dear Diane,

Thanks to everyone who joined us for "Storytelling & Food" on May 27, especially our wonderful speakers. Read on to learn more about the event, plus other updates.

Artists Present at "Storytelling & Food"

Change Food teamed up with Foodstand, a project of Purpose, to present "Storytelling and Food," an event that asked the question, "What power do stories have in creating a better food system?"

On May 27, we heard from a fascinating - and diverse - panel of artists: Tattfoo Tan, Ava Chin, Henry Hargreaves and Sean Kaminsky and Lee Brooks, the filmmaker and composer, respectively, behind the new documentary Open Sesame. You can watch the presentations on our YouTube channel, see photos from the event, or read our summary.

Thanks again to our sponsors: Harmless Harvest, Quinciple, Salumeria Rosi, SuperEats and Sweet Loren's!

Zester Daily Partnership Continues

The 2nd article in our ongoing collaboration with Zester Daily, the award-winning online destination for food, wine and travel enthusiasts, focuses on lawyer-turned-forager Tama Matsuoka Wong of Meadows and More. Tama spoke at TEDxManhattan 2013. Read about her path from law to wild plants, and get some tips for finding your own wild ingredients.

TEDxManhattan 2015 Update

We’re excited to announce the relaunch of the TEDxManhattan website, which has been given a much-needed redesign by our friends at Beaconhouse Media. Take a look!

Speaker applications are now being accepted for TEDxManhattan 2015, to be held on March 7 at the TimesCenter in NYC. If you or someone you know has a topic related to sustainable food and farming that you'd like to share on the stage, fill out an online application. Please note that due to the large number of applicants, all potential speakers must fill out an application - no exceptions!

We’re also looking for sponsors for TEDxManhattan 2015. More information can be found here, or email pam@changefood.org.

We’ll be back with more news next month.....

Eat well!
